Foreword

The Game of Checkers/Draughts is a highly competitive mind sport. Ever since its invention players have tried to compare their different skills by playing games, matches and tournaments.

Just as in other mind sports like 10*10 Draughts, Chess or Go, our game has outstanding players who deserve a special acknowledgement for their results.

In order to compare those players and to find out which ones are worthy to be named Grandmaster (GM), International Master (IM), Candidate Master (CM), Woman Grandmaster (WIM) and Woman International Master (WIM) the WCDF formed a committee in 2005 that had two aims:

1. To create a world ranking list.
2. To make proposals for the titles mentioned above and to draw up regulations for the awarding of the respective titles.

Although our work on the full regulations is not completed, we feel that now is the time to present the results that have been approved by the General Assembly of the WCDF at the Stonehaven meeting in July 2006.

In this report we present a list of the players found worthy of being named GM, IM, CM, WGM or WIM. These are based on the results from recent years and also from winner's rolls of the major tournaments from earlier years.

In the future, we will publish a report like this one, every half year, including the new title holders that have matched our criteria for the respective titles and a new world ranking as well as an updated tournament list.

This report covers each event that was reported to us until June 30 th 2006, and so it is named 01/06 as it covers the first half of 2006. The next report will be 02/06, covering results until 31st December 2006.

A short note on the content:

It includes the list of events that were reported to us, in order to show the raw data that the rating list is based on. There may be some events missed, but we hope that in future the organisers and national federations as well as the players involved, will help to boost the reporting process world-wide.

The most exciting part of this report is the list of the very first WCDF approved titleholders of our game. Included is a brief explanation of the regulations we have made and that will be used from now on to determine the titles.

We tried also to ensure that the present list includes players that have more or less, fulfilled the requirements of the regulations, but who preceded the time before our work began. We also had to take a look at the winners of the major tournaments of the past to ensure that all worthy candidates should carry the most prestigious title of Grandmaster.

The rating list which follows, is divided into two main lists, A and B.

List A includes all players that have a RD (i.e. " Rating Deviation", a measure for the stability and reliability of the achieved rating) of less than 150, meaning that their strength is very well measured by our rating.

In list B players with an RD of 150 or more are listed. These are players that have either not played very many games, or played too unsteadily to give a reliable impression of their real strength. These ratings are likely to change dramatically if the player enters one or more new events.

There follows a rating list of female players that are included in list A, to show separately who are the strongest women in our game, and finally an alphabetical list is given, to make it easy for any player to find him or herself in this report.

Most columns in our lists are self-explanatory and the term RD has already been explained above.

The column ID refers to a Identification Digit attached to each individual player that allows the rating operator, Mr. Igor Keder, Prague, Czech Republic, to identify each player and to enter the tournament data more quickly, as each misspelling of any name could cause the program to actually think it is a different person.

The rating list was produced with computer-based data, entered by Igor, using the Glicko variant of the well known Elo-system, a method used in Chess, 10*10 Draughts, Go and numerous other mind sports.

The members of the committee, including Richard Beckwith (USA), Ian Caws (England), Hugh Devlin (Ireland), Igor Keder (Czech Republic), John Reade (England), Liam Stephens (Ireland) and Ingo Zachos (Germany) wish to thank all friends and contributors to our efforts and especially George Miller (England), for without his preliminary work on the rating list, which is in fact much older than our committee, we would not have come that far.
