Richard Beckwith: This article presents a day-by-day account of my impressions of the 2007 Las Vegas tournaments. Part 1 covers the youth tournament and US Nationals held in July. Part 2 reports on the World Qualifying Tournament in September. The third part gives my travel impressions of Las Vegas.

2007 ACF National "Derek Oldbury" GAYP Tournament and Arthur Niederhoffer Youth Tournament

by Richard Beckwith

I arrived in Las Vegas on Friday Night, July 20 at the Las Vegas Plaza Hotel.

The "Arthur Niederhoffer" youth tournament kicked off Saturday morning. As I came from my 11th floor hotel room, I was pleasantly surprised to find Tommy Canning and Shawn McCosker in the elevator. I last saw this pair when I played Tommy in the final round of the Prague Qualifier in 2005. Shawn was here for the youth and National tournament. I asked him about his first impressions of Las Vegas, to which replied, "Very hot!"

There were four older youth (defined as 21 and under in ACF tournaments) vying for the $3000 first prize, with an impressive list of players. Ryan Pronk was perhaps the most well known American, having finished 2nd in the big 2007 Tennessee State Tournament ahead of numerous masters. Shane McCosker of Northern Ireland is new to U.S. competition, but played solidly with a 7th place finish at last year's adult World Qualifier in Stonehaven Scotland. Rounding out the field were Kevin Burks, a Virginia State champ, and Paul Bryan of Ohio, past winner of the Majors in the Southern. There was also a younger division featuring six boys. Three boys were grandchildren of John Cardie, and two were grandsons to Alan Millhone. The 6th participant was only four years old! (Not quite a record, as we had a three-year old at the 2007 PA tournament.)

Tim Laverty refereed the youth event, with Kim Willis, ACF secretary, assisting with event promotion. The older kids recorded their own games and played a double round-robin and a repair round to make 7 rounds. The younger kids played a round-robin with two additional repair rounds to make 7 rounds. Adults recorded the games for the younger kids.

The playing facility for the youth tournament and next week's adult tournament was played in the Plaza Showroom attached to the back of the ground floor casino. In contrast, the 2005 8th International Match was played upstairs in a third floor conference room. This year's playing room had a red-carpet amphitheater setting. There were several levels of booths and rectangular tables for the players. The room was spacious. The only downside with the room was the lighting, which was adequate, but minimal. Naturally, the lighting is geared to what would normally appear on stage rather than where the audience sits. We made several requests with the hotel staff to improve lighting. The best we got were a few spotlights that shined into the ceiling.

Joe Strazicich had an exposition of Gold Token freebies (drinking glasses, pens, highlighters, etc.) Gold Token is the ACF's new checker gaming site. John Cardie had a new children's checker book for sale. John's book features many colored checker diagrams of beginner's positions. Tommy Canning also had a sample book on display for his excellent upcoming compilation on the twelve new 3-move openings.

During Saturday's play in the youth tournament, Shane McCosker won a game from Ryan Pronk (who unsuccessfully tried the Waterloo) to take the lead with 10 points. Kevin Burks was 2nd with 8, and Pronk and Bryan had 7 points. In the younger group, Colton Cardie (14 points) was first with Solomon Reece 2nd (12 points).

On Sunday, a group picture was taken of the youth players. The younger kids finished first, with Colton Cardie trailing Solomon Reece by 2 points heading into the final round after Colton had just lost to Solomon. John Cardie gave a pep talk to Colton that he later relayed to a Colorado newspaper:

King Solomon, Cardie calls him, the boy's name being Solomon. He's from Ohio and is known to move quickly and without mercy. Colton lost both games in 20 minutes. "Solomon kicked his butt," Cardie says. Cardie set off to console his grandson, whom he found in an empty hallway, stunned at the speed with which his defeat was delivered. Still, this loss did not budge Colton from the title round. He would have to battle Solomon one last time. "To win wouldn't be easy," Cardie says. But grandpa had a plan. "You've got him right where you want him, right?" "I do?" Colton asks. "Now he thinks you're a pushover. He thinks he's the bowling ball and you're the pins. This is what you need to do, Cardie told his grandson. You have five minutes to make a move. Take those five."

I personally recorded the final two games. The pace of play was rather quick (and certainly not the full five-minutes-a-move), and it was a challenge to keep up with recording the moves. After winning the first game, Colton and Solomon were now tied on points going into the final game. After a safely played opening part of the game on Single Corner opening, Colton gained a dominant center in the midgame and forced Solomon into a two-for-one shot to win the youth title. While this dropped Solomon into third place, he had an excellent tournament, even with having to play Colton three times.

Shane McCosker went on to win the older youth group (21 and under). Kim Willis presented trophies, certificates, and prize money to each youth.

^{*}Withdrew after 4 rounds

Monday was a rainy morning. By evening, there was lightning and a flash flood warning. Apparently this time of year is their "monsoon" season, although the annual rainfall in the desert is still only a few inches. Registration and a business meeting were conducted. Kim spoke about how great the youth performed. ACF Life Member Ray Shelly made a passionate speech about growing the game from a "garden club" to a National organization. Wade Holder asked about pairing rules, stating his dissatisfaction with being repaired with the same player more than twice in the same tournament (based on past experiences). Another rumor going around was that Ron King somehow missed his flight departing Barbados and would not arrive until after the start of the tournament.

There were two rounds on Monday. The one new change to this year's GAYP National was the switch to two-game rounds from four-game rounds, scoring by game. This also means everyone will have more opponents to cover 13 rounds. (Four-game rounds are still used at 3-move Nationals, where the Masters have the tough deck situation for games 3 and 4.)

Lubabalo Kondlo of South Africa and Jim Morrison opened the tournament with two draws against each other. John Webster took 3 and 4 points from Joe Schwartz and Alan Millhone, respectively. Paul Bryan (last in youth tournament) made a few waves, winning a game and 3 points off both Jack Francis and Gene Lindsay. Jack Francis is a Barbados player who finished 3rd at the 2005 GAYP National and also privately challenged Ron King for the world title later that year. Shane McCosker (the other youth contestant competing in the masters) started off with all draws against Hallett and Beckwith. Ryan Pronk did not play in the main tournament. The fourth youth participant, Kevin Burks, took the day 1 lead in the Majors with 7 points. Alex Weaver led the Minors with a perfect 8 points. The Masters leaderboard stood as follows:

John Webster	7
Paul Bryan	6
Jim Morrison	5
Rich Beckwith	5

One of the week's big stories was the arrival of a player from South Africa. Alan Millhone went to much effort and red tape at working to bring Lubabalo Kondlo here. Victor Niederhoffer offered much assistance financially. I understand that Lubabalo's home community is extremely poor. People sleep like sardines in his crowded house, and share an outhouse with a neighboring house. Lubabalo eats a mush-like substance for sustenance and gets prime rib maybe once every two years, and ice cream maybe at Christmas. Lubabalo was blown away with the Las Vegas accommodations by having his own bed and having a buffet available anytime of the day!

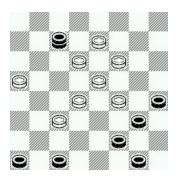

On Tuesday I received a shipment from Jim Loy of his brand new book entitled, "The Magical Play of Elbert Lowder." The book is very thick (447 pages), spiral bound, and contains annotated games and diagrams spanning Elbert's checker career. I sold several books during the tournament on Jim Loy's behalf at $30 apiece.

Richard Hallett, one of the all-time greats (especially in 3-move play), lost two games to Jim Morrison. I have heard Hallett say on occasion, "I don't like GAYP." Ron King finally arrived in the afternoon and still thought he could make a comeback to contend in the tournament. He started the evening round with a bye worth 3 points.

At the end of Day 2 (5 rounds), John Webster continued to lead.

John Webster	15
Shane McCosker	14
Jim Morrison	13
Lubabalo Kondlo	12
Richard Beckwith	11
Joe Schwartz	11

On Wednesday Ron King worked his way up through the bottom half of the field, scoring 11 out of 12 possible points. The day concluded with a small prayer service by Wade Holder. There was not much change in the top of the leaderboard. With 8 of 13 rounds in the books, John Webster continued to lead. John played three drawn rounds with Kondlo, Lindsay, and Beckwith. John's game with Lubabalo ended in a pretty shot:

Black to move and draw

Black draws with 3-8, 14-5, 13-17, 22-13, 6-9, 13-6, 1-19, 23-16, 8-31! The standings were as follows:

John Webster	21
Shane McCosker	20
Jim Morrison	19
Lubabalo Kondlo	19
Richard Beckwith	18

There was more movement in the lower divisions. Jimmy O'Grady opened up a three-point lead over Kevin Burks in the Majors. Eric Strange won all six games to take a Minors lead that he would never relinquish, although Gilberto Cisneros of Mexico made a fine run down the stretch.

Thursday was a very lively day in the Masters. Clayton Nash won a game off John Webster on a Wagram line to tighten things at the top. Meanwhile, it became apparent the Lubabalo Kondlo was the lucky man of the tournament week. Paul Bryan had Kondlo in an apparent loss with 4 kings vs. 3 kings in the center of the board, but a bad slip allowed Mr. Kondlo to draw. The next round featured more of the same when Kondlo played myself. Just as in the Paul Bryan game, Kondlo was again down 3 kings to 4 kings. And in what has to be my worst lapses ever, I ended up giving Kondlo the game. What can I say....my focus had gotten erratic to the point where I happened to "see" the board totally different than what the actual position was. In the second game, I was able to get the game back with a prepared pitch when Kondlo played a weak Glasgow line that was played by Jack Francis and Carl Reno in 2005.

Gerry Lopez talked to local TV news reporter in the playing room. The news piece was shown on local TV in the late afternoon. The clip featured Gerry's interview and a few shots of some of the players. The day ended with a four-way tie at the top.

John Webster	26
Shane McCosker	26
Lubabalo Kondlo	26
Richard Beckwith	26
Jim Morrison	25
Joe Schwartz	25
Gene Lindsay	25
Clayton Nash	24

Ron King's winning pace turned into a draw streak when he was paired with Jim Morrison and Lubabalo Kondlo to finish the day with 22 points – too far back to contend with two rounds remaining. King and Kondlo played two "quiet" draws head-to-head (Old 14th).

Repairing was initiated in the final two rounds on Friday. Gene Lindsay won a game off Joe Schwartz to make it a 5-way tie (!) heading into the afternoon's final round. John Webster struck first winning a game off Jim Morrison when Jim played a weak Pioneer line with red. Shane McCosker and Gene Lindsay played two draws. That left the rematch of Lubabalo Kondlo and Richard Beckwith as the last match of the tournament (among the contenders) still in progress. After a drawn first game, Lubabalo selected the tricky 5-9 man-down line of the Old Fourteenth. Actually I welcomed him trying it, as I thought I knew it pretty well, and I even featured the line in my 2006 Ohioan book. However, I went on to misplay the ending when it came to a race of "going in for kings" and Lubabalo won on a long ending. After an honor point calculation it was determined that Lubabalo had two more honor points than John Webster and was crowned the tournament winner. Kevin Burks came from behind to edge out Jimmy O'Grady to win the Majors. Eric Strange won the minors, and Wilma Wolverton was crowned U.S. ladies champion.

John Webster had an outstanding tournament. Gene Lindsay told me that he set John up with a checker program, which seems to have rejuvenated his play. This tournament was also a fine one for Gene Lindsay. These close friends held the top two American spots. (We'll really miss you Gene!)

Paul Bryan (last in youth tournament) won rounds from Francis and Lindsay on Day 1, and also won games from Hallett and Holmes (and had Kondlo in an ending loss, but drew). Shane McCosker hovered around 2nd place through much of the tournament (and must now be the year's leading money winner through July 2007!). This shows how good the youth tournament was this year.

Prize fund was $11,545. Here are point totals.

World Qualifier Tournament

The WCDF Qualifying Tournament was held in Las Vegas two months after the US National GAYP Tournament, won by Lubabalo Kondlo of South Africa, who squeaked by with first place on honor points over John Webster. On the weekend before the start of the tournament, Jim Morrison saw Lubabalo Kondlo seated beside the Plaza Hotel's circular driveway and asked Lubabalo if he brought his rabbit's foot again.

The US selections, made early in the year prior to the National, included defending GAYP WQT champ Jim Morrison (automatically entered by WCDF rules), Clayton Nash, Ed Bruch (now in his nineties!), Michael Holmes, Joe Schwartz (the hero of the 2005 Las Vegas 8th International Match), and Richard Beckwith, the latter two being ICHF nominations. The other two international entries besides Mr. Kondlo included WCDF Grandmaster Jack Francis of Barbados and Sune Thrane of Denmark, who played in Prague in 2005. The women's tournament featured Jan Mortimer of New Zealand and two distinguished Missouri ladies, Kim Willis (ACF Secretary and WQT organizer), and Wilma Wolverton, editor of Missouri Checker Association Newsletter.

The July National Tournament was held in a large, expensive showroom. But given the reduced number of competitors for this invitational, it was decided to hold the event in a 24th floor suite used by Alan Millhone. The suite featured adjoining rooms and our own bathroom. The accommodations were a little tight, but adequate (plus we had a nice view.) Long tables and chairs were rented to accommodate the players. I opened with a few remarks about the tournament proceedings. Alan left his laptop open on the counter to make frequent updates on the ACF forum so that the checker fraternity was informed of the progress of the event.

Tim Laverty, a fan of Las Vegas, agreed to referee this event and was added to the men's competition to produce an even number of players, as permitted in WCDF by-laws. This produced a field of 10 men and 3 women. The men were scheduled to play by Swiss pairings for 8 rounds, two rounds a day, with no repairing. The women played a double round-robin.

Colton Cardie, winner of the July younger youth division and grandson of John Cardie, was back. Because he was the only youth entry, Colton won the WCDF World Youth title by default. Colton is home-schooled and was able to attend. However, the decision to have the youth event in September during the school year appeared to hurt the youth attendance. At the July ACF National, we had six younger youth and 4 older youth (age 21 and under), whereas WCDF requires youth be under 18 or they are no longer considered youth, but young men. I note that the 2005 Prague GAYP Qualifier was also held in the fall, but still yielded 6 youth.

In Round 1 of the tournament, Tim Laverty began this GAYP event in typical Laverty fashion by opening with the supposedly weak opening 12-16 24-20 11-15 vs. Michael Holmes. Nevertheless, Tim's "mix-it-up" style worked on this particular occasion and enabled him to score 4 points to become one of the early front-runners. Jack Francis also picked up an early 4 points. In the second round, Lubabalo Kondlo won an Alma game from Ed Bruch (who doesn't lose too many games) after Ed lost in an ending. Jan Mortimer gained an early lead for the ladies division winning one game from Kim Willis. At the end of Day 1, the men's leaderboard had a two-way tie at the top:

Jack Francis	6
Tim Laverty	6
Lubabalo Kondlo	5
Rich Beckwith	4
Jim Morrison	4
Clayton Nash	4
Joe Schwartz	4

Tuesday's opening round was uneventful for the men in terms of placements (many drawn matches). The women arrived at the halfway point, where all three ladies had played each other once. Jan held a slender lead over the Missouri ladies.

Jan Mortimer	9
Kim Willis	8
Wilma Wolverton	7

Things livened up a bit for the men in the afternoon session (Round 4). Michael Holmes, who opened the tournament with a goose egg, scored a fine 4 points off Joe Schwartz.

I also picked up 4 points, but had yet to play many of the other top contenders. At the halfway point, we had a three-way tie for the lead.

Rich Beckwith	10
Jack Francis	10
Tim Laverty	10
Michael Holmes	9
Lubabalo Kondlo	9
Ed Bruch	8
Jim Morrison	8
Clayton Nash	8

The ladies concluded on Wednesday, with Jan winning both her rounds against the Missouri ladies. Jan commented after the tournament how tough her games were with Kim and Wilma, who both tied for 2nd. Jan now wins the right to challenge Amangul Durdyeva for the ladies GAYP title.

Jan Mortimer	20
Kim Willis	14
Wilma Wolverton	14

There was much activity on the men's side as well. I played a secondary Souter line on Tim Laverty, who responded with a man-down variation. However, Tim made a late mid-game blunder, which prevented him from ever getting the piece back. Meanwhile, Jack Francis won a game from Michael Holmes, and Lubabalo won a key game from Clayton Nash on an Excalibur line ending. However, the joint lead of Francis and Beckwith didn't last long, as Lubabalo took two games from Joe Schwartz in the afternoon to take the lead. One of these key wins for Lubabalo was a repeated White Dyke mid-game position where I had previously missed a win versus Joe in Round 1. With one day and two rounds to go, one point separated the top three players.

Lubabalo Kondlo	16
Rich Beckwith	15
Jack Francis	15
Tim Laverty	13

On Thursday, the tournament quickly became a two-man race with Clayton Nash taking a game from Jack Francis. Clayton went to school on a missed attack in the Round 5 Francis-Holmes Single Corner game and scored a fine win. Meanwhile, Lubabalo showed signs of playing defensively to maintain his lead. After Lubabalo played an extremely safe Old 14th line with white in Game 1, I varied with Cross with white in the second game. At the July Nationals, Kondlo played the tricky Montrose Cross (11-15 23-18 15-19), but in this Qualifier, he switched to 11-15 23-18 8-11 27-23 10-14. Lubabalo went off-book in the late mid-game, but the game initially appeared to be a solid draw to both of us. With one round remaining, Kondlo maintained his one-point lead.

Lubabalo Kondlo	18
Rich Beckwith	17
Jack Francis	16
Jim Morrison	16

Immediately after the 7th round, Tim Laverty scouted out the final round pairings and informed me there was no way to make a fresh pair for everyone in the final round. The WCDF rules do not repair the last round (even though this practice is common in US tournaments). With only 10 players in the field, it is not surprising this situation arose. Alan Millhone suggested pairing from top to bottom to let the leaders play it off. I also considered the scenario of only repairing the bottom two. However, the consensus ruling was to repair from top to bottom for the final round. (I later discussed this with WCDF secretary John Reade after the tournament, and he found the solution reasonable.) This meant I would have to play Kondlo again in the final round.

Since I did not anticipate repairing, I spent the next two hours in my hotel room with Michael Holmes' laptop trying to come up with a second set of lines to play on Lubabalo. Given that this event is essentially "winner take all," I knew two quiet draws would not suffice for me. I looked at some really "off-the wall" Glasgow lines with the program, but didn't feel good about the winning chances of such material. Lastly, I quickly ran up the Cross game we had just played, and -- lo and behold -- realized I missed a win against Lubabalo in that late mid-game. I suspected he was unaware of it too, as he never mentioned any missed attacks to me after our game. So, I realized I missed one golden opportunity, but now I had something to try for in the event he plays for defensive repeat draw.

In our first game of Round 8, I had red and played a tricky Glasgow line (according to Basic Checkers, Var.K). Lubabalo said after the game that he had not seen that line in ages, but he picked out the correct draw moves. So, now it's the last game and I have white. I repeated the same Cross line as in the morning round. We were within a couple moves of the point where he made the losing move this morning. But after much eager anticipation on my part, he played an alternate draw line right before my trap, and my winning chances were quickly gone. After a few more moves of not finding anything to work with in the position, I offered him my congratulations for the drawn game and the tournament victory. I asked about our morning game, and he said he had no idea he was in a loss, but perhaps varied just to avoid potential complications. The final score was as follows:

Name	Fed.	Points	Son. Ber.
1. Lubabalo Kondlo	WCDF	20
2. Rich Beckwith	ICHF	19
3. Jack Francis	Barb.	18	257
4. Jim Morrison	WCDF	18	252
5. Tim Laverty	extra	17	293
6. Clayton Nash	ACF	17	255
7. Ed Bruch	ACF	16	233
8. Michael Holmes	ACF	16	229
9. Joe Schwartz	ICHF	16
10. Sune Thrane	Den.	3

Tim Laverty told me after the tournament how he thought I should have gone all out against Kondlo to get him off book. While this is more Tim's style than it is my strength, he may have a good point. My choice of more "conservative" winning chances didn't pan out this time.

While I was pretty engrossed in my last four games, I don't recall much fanfare at the close of the tournament in terms of a ceremony, trophy presentation, or group picture (as was done in Prague in 2005). I only recall each player received a certificate and an envelope of money from Kim Willis as a financial kickback to assist with player expenses.

I was encouraged about the development of Checkers in South Africa. Alan Millhone provided Lubabalo with several checker sets to take home. Lubabalo was also expecting an entourage of fans at the Johannesburg airport awaiting his arrival (if only we had such reactions for our American players!). I also heard talk of possible Sponsorship from Coca Cola within South Africa after seeing Lubabalo's success. Lubabalo also spoke of promoting his own draughts association within South Africa, although I suspect their governmental rules will not permit recognition of a second entity. Alan Millhone also passed on his thoughts for Lubabalo's future match with Ron King:

Lubabalo getting to play in this match and getting the match publicized in SA will go a long ways in what Lubabalo wants to encourage youth to take up the game and get the game into the schools as a viable after hours program to help keep the youth out of trouble. That at least is what Lubabalo's dream is.

I also thank Kim Willis, Gerry Lopez, and Alan Millhone for all their work at putting this event together. I believe this was the only Qualifier bid received this year. There were many behind-the-scenes headaches they had to deal with, such as the Plaza Hotel gouging us on table rentals. I also understand Alan incurred significant personal expense at providing Lubabalo's hotel accommodations, as well as other details. So, my thanks go to the crew for making this event possible. I now await a new world title match between Lubabalo Kondlo and Ron King in September 2008.

Las Vegas

One of my favorite recent checker destinations is Las Vegas, Nevada. I have attended Las Vegas five times for the 2002 National, 2004 National, 2005 8th International Match against Great Britain-Ireland, and the 2007 National and Qualifying Tournaments. Here I will present my impressions of the Las Vegas area, followed by some new personal memories from 2007.

There are two famous strip areas in Las Vegas. The old downtown strip (Fremont Street) features many of the older hotels, such as Binion's Horseshoe (commonly used for TV poker events), Golden Nugget, Fremont, Four Queens, and several others. The Golden Gate hotel is the oldest hotel & casino in Las Vegas and opened in 1905. In the 1990s, Freemont Street was covered with a four-block long canopy and was closed to traffic. The outside of the hotels is covered with thousands of moving lights at night. One great feature about the Fremont Street Experience is the hourly light shows in the evening. The outdoor hotel lights are turned off, and an animated light show set to music is run across the underside of the entire canopy. A different show runs periodically throughout the evening. When the show is complete, the casino lights come back on, and people begin to move about their normal business again.

The Fremont Street hotels tend to offer few ticketed shows compared to the new strip. However, the hotels are very close together, making it easy to get around by foot. Also, Fremont Street is climate controlled underneath the canopy, which is very helpful against the summer heat. On Friday and Saturday nights, live music can be found. There are many street vendors, souvenir shops (and Vegas showgirls) as you walk down Fremont. In my 2007 visits, there were increased street attractions including more musicians (such as a grand piano player), bands, and motorcyclists riding inside a spherical cage.

The other major strip on Las Vegas Boulevard is also a marvel to observe. These strip hotels tend to be newer and bigger with much landscaping, waterfalls, etc. (There also seem to be more people cluttering the sidewalks handing out advertisement cards to live girl shows too.) The newer strip extends three miles across Las Vegas Boulevard and contains many of the newer hotels, such as the Stratosphere, Sahara, Circus Circus, Mirage, Caesar's Palace, Bellagio, Aladdin, New York New York, and MGM Grand. Many of the hotels have distinctive outdoor architecture or other attractions. The Stratosphere features the tallest tower in the West. A makeshift volcano erupts every 15 minutes at the Mirage. Art lovers can visit the Bellagio's gallery or the painted ceilings within the Venetian. Roller coaster fans can take a ride at the Sahara, New York New York, Circus Circus, or even atop the Stratosphere tower. The Paris hotel has a model Eiffel Tower, while New York New York features a skyline of the Big Apple. The Sphinx and great pyramid are hard to miss at the Luxor.

Visiting all the hotels on foot is difficult given the greater spacing between hotels. The hotels are enormous, so they look closer together than they really are. I tended to visit a small cluster of hotels at a time, and other hotels can be reached by bus or by a free shuttle. There are a few free trams that connect some of the lower strip hotels, such as the connection between Bellagio and Monte Carlo, and another between Excalibur and Mandalay Bay. These are useful to save on walking. Recently, a monorail was added connecting MGM Grand and the Sahara.

If you book a trip to Las Vegas in advance, beware of the difficulty of trying to arrive on Saturday night. Many hotels do not accept Saturday arrivals. Gerry Lopez tells me that hotels leave rooms unoccupied so they can fill the rooms at $100+ a night with Los Angeles visitors who come up for the weekend.

Summer in Las Vegas is quite hot, as one might expect. Nevertheless, I have walked the streets in daytime without any ill effects. While it is very warm, it is not unbearable due to the dry air.

One cannot discuss Las Vegas without mentioning all the casinos. When you step off the plane upon arriving, there are slot machines waiting for you in the gate area. Casinos are typically large and offer hundreds of various slot machines, as well as dealer games such as roulette, blackjack, craps, and keno.

Las Vegas has been known for cheap food and buffets. This is certainly true to some extent, if you know where the deals are. Overall, the food prices are reasonable and varied. Most hotels contain several restaurants ranging from fast food counters to sit-down places of varying price ranges. Hotels typically feature a few house specials. Many hotels have prime rib dinners for under $10.00, 99-cent shrimp cocktails, or 99-cent hot dogs.

Many hotels contain a breakfast, lunch, and dinner buffet. Some are very cheap, given the quality of food. Buffets typically include carved ham and beef, several hot dishes, fresh fruits, numerous salads, pies, and other fancy desserts. The buffets vary quite a bit in size and price from hotel to hotel. Some of the larger buffets feature a particular cuisine, such as seafood, Asian, exotic dishes, etc. The Plaza Hotel has a "lucky" $7.77 buffet price all day long. The Golden Nugget Hotel buffet moved to the 2nd floor (the price also went up) since my last 2005 visit. The Main Street Station hotel and Casino still has the best and biggest buffet of the downtown area, and it is only $8 on weekdays for lunch.

Other new additions to Las Vegas:

A double-decker bus called "The Deuce" takes you up and down Las Vegas Boulevard and connects the new strip with Fremont St. An all day pass is $5.

A "Half-price Tickets" booth is available at the Four Queens (and other places) for discount shows scheduled that day. The idea is for the hotels to try and fill up unused seats.

A new swimming pool was added to the Golden Nugget with an enclosed aquarium centerpiece. (Now you can really swim with the sharks!)

On Monday night of the 2007 National tournament, I paid to see a show by Larry Jones at Fitzgerald's Hotel & Casino. He is dubbed as the man of 1001 voices. He does comedic singing impersonations of famous singers as well as vocal imitations of presidents and the like. He has an amazing powerful voice, no matter whom he impersonates.

I had already made trips to Grand Canyon and Hoover Dam in 2002. In September 2007, I made an attempt to get on a tour bus to Zion National Park and Bryce Canyon, both in Utah. However, the van trip fell through, as no one else signed up for the trip on that day. The reservationist suggested I try their day trip to the Valley of Fire for some alternate good scenery, so that's what I did. The trip took us North of Las Vegas on I-15 past Nellis Air Force Base and a motor speedway complex and into the desolation of the Mojave Desert. Much of the scenery in Nevada consists of numerous brownish-gray mountains in the background. We took a turn down a two-lane highway where we entered a region where the rocks took on vibrant red colors and textures due to iron content and wind erosion. Our driver stopped several times for us to get out and take pictures. Two stops featured a natural arch and other named, look-alike rocks, such as "Poodle Rock" (see upcoming picture). The stop at Atlatl rock ("atlatl" is a throwing tool used for hunting) featured a three-story staircase to scale a rock formation to the presence of petroglyphs, which are 4000-year-old hieroglyphic-like writings carved into rock by Indians. Another scenic spot was atop Rainbow Vista, where we could see multi-colored rocks for miles. At one stop we broke for a 20-minute hike through desert sand and rocks to get to the watering hole known as "Mouse's Tank." Mouse was a renegade Indian who murdered several people. He was able to elude capture by hiding out in the mountains near a natural cistern. Our last stop in the Valley of Fire was White Dome, which featured white-colored mountains and a nearby movie studio set. This area was featured in such films as The Professional, Star Trek: Generations, Stephen King's The Stand, and Sheryl Crow's music video for "The First Cut is the Deepest."

While this area is home to various animals such as bighorn sheep, mountain lions, scorpions, etc, we didn't see much wildlife other than several small lizards and small gray ground squirrels that were the size of a chipmunk. There were three other tourists beside myself on this trip – a Russian lady and two young Japanese men who didn't speak much English. They seemed to enjoy the trip very much and eagerly took a picture of every little lizard we encountered. The trip cost $119 and included the transportation to and from my hotel, lunch, and a museum ticket.

For my final day in Las Vegas in September 2007, I payed a visit to the center of the new strip of Las Vegas Boulevard. I stopped for lunch at the Rio Hotel & Casino (an off-strip hotel accessible by free shuttle). Their Carnival Buffet may be the biggest in Las Vegas. I must have walked a couple blocks to get from one end of the buffet to the other end and back! The lunch price was reasonable ($16) given the selection.

I saw a comedy magic show at Harrah's. Mac King normally does this performance, but a substitute performed this day. I also saw two of the free outdoor fountain shows at the massive lake in front of the Bellagio. For the evening, I attended Bally's version of "The Price is Right" game show. This is an untelevised copycat of the long-running TV show. Tickets cost $48, with members of the studio audience eligible to "come on down" to win prizes. The host for the show was Todd Newton who has some TV credits (Hollywood Showdown, Entertainment news). The stage, props, and games looked pretty much like the TV version of The Price is Right, but there were several differences. The value of prizes (cash or goods) was noticeably smaller than the corresponding prizes given away on the TV version. Also, a fresh set of contestants is called to come on down for every pricing game, wheel spin and showcase, which gives more people a chance to play. I never got called to come on down, but I still enjoyed watching Plinko, Cliffhanger, Hole in One, and the rest of the show. This concluded my most recent trip to Las Vegas, as I had to head straight to the airport from Bally's (in a cold, driving rain, no less!).

Las Vegas is very excessive and glitzy and is not for everybody. However, I always enjoy the sights, and I certainly miss those buffets when I leave. Hopefully I will be back again someday. I wish to acknowledge Gerry Lopez for promoting multiple checker tournaments in Las Vegas and for making these experiences possible.

A – Double Corner.

 $\mathbf{B} - 26\text{-}22 \text{ draw PP}.$

C – 12-16 draw PP.

D – 3-7 24-20 7-11 draw, Kear's Encyclopedia, p.349 note W.

E - 23-27! draw, planning 14-18-23, threatens to win.

 $\mathbf{F} - 6-10\ 15-6\ 1-10\ 25-22\ 14-17\ draw$.

G – Several moves later, the WW was adjudicated by computer. At this position, I have confirmed this WW on the Chinook WWW site.

#11, Keith Weaver - Michael Holmes, round 4 g.1

11-15 22-18 15-22(A) 25-18 10-14(B) 24-19 8-11 28-24(C) 6-10(D) 24-20(E) 9-13(F) 18-9 5-14(G) 29-25 11-15 19-16 12-19 23-16 7-11(H) 16-7 2-11 25-22(I) 14-18 22-17 13-22 26-17 18-22(J) 17-14(K) 10-17 21-14 3-7?(L) WW(M)

A – Single Corner.

B – Rare, but Holmes had seen it twice before.

C – 27-24 draw, J. P. Reed – C. F. Barker, 1891 match g.16.

D – 9-13 draw, L. Ginsberg – A. Jordan, 1922 ACA Nat.

 \mathbf{E} – = 11-15 24-20 8-11 28-24 10-14 22-18 15-22 25-18 6-10 24-19 in Robertson's Guide. Or 29-25 draw, W. Campbell – F. Brown, 1898 Scottish Ty. and later W. Fraser – T. Wiswell, 1956 GAYP WCM g.38 and M. Holmes – D. Brattin, 2004 Kentucky Ty. and others. Or 26-22, R. Shuffett – M. Holmes, 2004 Indiana Ty.

F - 3-8 draw, several J. Wyllie - J. Robertson games, in Robertson's Guide and played in both the 1905 IM and the 1927 IM.

 $G = 9-13\ 24-19\ 11-15\ 28-24\ 6-9\ 22-18\ 15-22\ 25-18\ 9-14\ 18-9\ 5-14\ 24-20$ (or 29-25\ 8-11\ 24-20, also into the above game) 8-11.

H – May be new. Somewhat stronger is 15-18 draw in Kear's Encyclopedia, p.443 v.17.

I - 26-23 may be stronger, but it seems to draw.

J – Or 18-23 draw.

K - 27-23 may be somewhat stronger.

L – Too bad. A good game to here. 15-19 draw.

M – Continue 31-26 WW.

G - 6-9 may be better.

 $\mathbf{H} - 15\text{-}10!$ 5-9 White strong and may actually win, but not 11-15? 27-24 WW!

I – 13-17! 22-13 1-6 draw, as White has to give the piece back. Continue 14-10 7-14 28-24 14-17 20-16 11-20 15-11 8-15 19-1 draw.

J - A strong game by White.

A – Cross Choice.

 $\mathbf{B} - 25 - 21$ draw PP, perhaps to same.

C – 15-19 is the trunk draw in Basic Checkers.

D- 12-16 draw PP.

 $\mathbf{E} - 26-23$ draw, L. Taylor – E. Frazier, 1962 U.S. Nat.

 $\mathbf{F} - 24\text{-}20$ also draws.

G - 5-9 also draws.

 \mathbf{H} – This works nicely, but 27-24! may be an easier draw.

I – Draw confirmed by Chinook.

 \mathbf{A} – Cross.

B – 26-23 6-9 25-22 draw, S. McCosker – R. Pronk in round 6.

 $\mathbf{C} - 21 - 17$ may be safer.

D- 17-14 may draw.

 \mathbf{E} – Others lose.

F - 27-32!! 23-14 12-16 and 16-19 RW.

G - 11-15 is also strong.

H – 28-24!! 27-32 22-18! 32-28 18-15! draw.

I – 14-10 7-14 21-14 11-16 RW, now or later.

 $\mathbf{B} = 10 - 1424 - 206 - 1024 - 2011 - 15$.

C – This popular move seems to lose. 28-24 draw PP.

D – This move has been around since 1905, and probably wins (as I planned to report in my BC corrections) while the more popular 15-19 may only draw.

E - 26-23 RW PP or 28-24 RW, H. Reynolds – H.

Morrall, 1905 IM.

 $\mathbf{F} - 4-8$? draws PP.

G-32-27 should have lost, J. Ferrie – H. Reynolds, 1905 IM.

S-B (Sonnenborn – Berger) tiebreak for a player is the scores of every opponent he/she defeated plus half the scores of every opponent he/she drew. In this tournament, the tiebreak was evidently twice that, to avoid fractions. This method is widely used in round robins where other methods fail to break any ties, because everyone who is tied has played opponents with the same scores. This tournament was not a round robin. Personally, I consider S-B tiebreak to be little different from flipping a coin.

A – Laverty also played this in round 1, against Michael Holmes.

 $\mathbf{B} - 7-11$ may be stronger.

C - 23-19 probably draws, K. Albrecht - T.

Laverty, 2005 GAYP Nat.

D – Laverty played 23-18 in the other game.

E - 12-16! 15-10 7-14* 23-18 14-23 26-12 may be strong for Red.

A – Dyke. This opening was played three times in this tournament: J. Schwartz – R. Beckwith in round 1, J. Morrison – J. Schwartz in round 2, and this game.

B – This move was played three times in the tournament.

C – And this move was played twice.

D - 7-10 draw PP.

E – In the notes to the Morrison – Schwartz game, I recommended 8-12.

 \mathbf{F} – As I typed earlier, 22-17 or 27-24 are easier.

G – A great improvement over 8-11? which was the losing move in the Morrison – Schwartz game. Perhaps Mr. Holmes studied that game.

 $H - 16-19 \ 26-23!$ seems to draw.

I – 22-17 24-28 8-11 28-32 23-18!! and 18-14 and 14-10 and 13-9 and 17-13 draw.

J - 8-12 makes sense, but 31-26 30-23 27-18 is a RW, according to Chinook.

K – Perhaps no more difficult than 30-26 30-23 27-18 RW, Chinook.

L – A very nice ending by Michael Holmes.

Joe Schwartz – Michael Holmes, round 4 game 2

11-15 22-18 15-22 25-18 12-16 29-25 16-20 24-19(A) 9-13(B) 25-22(C) 8-11(D) 19-16 4-8 28-24(E) 5-9(F) 16-12?(G) 1-5(H) 30-25 9-14(I) 18-9 5-14 22-18 14-17 21-14 10-17 18-14(J) 17-21 25-22 21-25 14-9 25-30 9-5 6-10 5-1 30-25(K) 1-6!!(L) 2-9 24-19 25-18 23-5 11-16(M) 26-23 8-11?(N) 5-1 10-14 1-6 14-17 6-2 7-10 2-6 11-15 32-28 15-24 6-15 WW

A – Maybe more popular than 18-14.

B – Back to well-known play. 8-11 draw PP.

C – 28-24 draw PP, as played in the Bruch – Francis game, shown next.

 \mathbf{D} – 5-9 draw PP.

E - 16-12 draw PP.

F -= 11-15 22-18 15-22 25-18 12-16 29-25 9-13 25-22 16-20 24-19 5-9 28-24 8-11 19-16 4-8.

G - 32-28 may draw.

H – This may win. 11-16 is a popular RW in Kear's Encyclopedia p.154 v.34, also L. Balderson – E. Lowder, 1999 GAYP Nat. on p.416 of my Lowder book.

I – 11-16 RW.

J - 26-22 may be more difficult.

K – There are other ways to play, but this may be easiest.

L – Alertly forcing an ending similar to the ending in the previous game, but this is a draw, so far.

M – 11-15 19-16 15-18 may be easier.

N – 13-17! 5-1 17-22! 1-5 (1-6? 22-26!! RW) 8-11! draw, is the right order of moves.

Ed Bruch – Jack Francis, round 4 game 1

K - A wonderful game, even with the mistakes, or because of the mistakes.

Clayton Nash – Lubabalo Kondlo, round 5 game 1

 \mathbf{A} – Boston.

 $\mathbf{B} - 8\text{-}11 \text{ draw PP}.$

C - 30-25 should probably draw, C. Nash – A. Ferguson, 2004 USA vs. Barbados.

 \mathbf{D} – Or 1-6 to same.

E – 13-17 draw, G. Leclair – J. Sprague, 1952 U.S. Nat. and A. Moiseyev – R. Williams, 2004 USA vs. Barbados, a game which paralleled this Nash – Kondlo game for many moves. Here is the Moiseyev – Williams game, if you would like to compare:

11-15 22-17 9-13 17-14 10-17 21-14 6-10 25-21 10-17 21-14 2-6 29-25 6-10 25-21 10-17 21-14 15-18 24-19 1-6 27-24 18-27 32-23 8-11 30-25 13-17 25-21 6-9 31-27 9-18 23-14 5-9 14-5 11-16 21-14 16-32 26-22 32-27 24-20 27-23 22-17 23-26 17-13 26-22 5-1 22-17 14-9 17-14 1-5 14-10 5-1 7-11 9-6 3-8 6-2 11-15 2-6 10-14 6-2 8-11 1-6 14-10 6-1 12-16 2-6 4-8 6-2 8-12 2-6 16-19 6-2 19-23 2-6 23-27 6-9 27-32 9-5 32-27 13-9 27-23 9-6 23-18 6-2 15-19 2-6 10-14 6-2 19-23 1-6 23-27 2-7 18-15 7-16 12-19 20-16 27-31 5-1 31-27 6-2 27-24 1-6 14-10 6-1 24-20 16-12 15-11 2-6 10-14 1-5 19-23 RW, A.

Moiseyev – R. Williams, 2004 USA vs. Barbados

 $\mathbf{F} - 7\text{-}10$ makes sense. Red has a temporary advantage, because of the soon-to-be-crowded double corner. I would guess that Mr. Nash has studied this ending.

G – Leaving the king on 14 does not prevent a third king.

H – I don't think Red has any advantage now, and he should grab a draw. In the Moiseyev – Williams game, White didn't try to advance the piece on 13 until much later, and lost a long ending.

I – 19-24 draw.

 \mathbf{J} – Or 10-14 draw.

K – Or 10-14 draw.

L – Or 27-24 draw.

M-19-24 draw. Apparently, Red still thought he had a draw, but he should have begun to sense danger. It is easy to criticize the earlier moves, but a draw here would have made this game one of the best of the tournament.

N – 19-16 7-3 16-12 (8-12 3-8 WW) 28-24 WW.

Lubabalo Kondlo - Clayton Nash, round 5 game 2

A – Also played in J. Schwartz – C. Nash in round 3.

B - 5-9 was played in the Schwartz – Nash game.

C – 23-18 should probably draw, J. L. Richmond – J. P. Reed, 1887 match g.8, but not 28-24? 13-17 RW?

D – 23-19 draw, J. Schwartz – T. Laverty, 2005 GAYP Nat.

E - 28-24 draw.

F - 3-7!! 23-19 4-8! 28-24 7-11 32-27 9-14 18-9 11-18 9-5 6-10 19-16 (others lose) 18-23 27-18 13-17 RW.

Sune Thrane – Joe Schwartz, round 5 game 1

11-15 23-18 8-11 27-23 10-14 22-17(A) 15-22 17-10 6-15 26-17(B) 7-10(C) 17-13 9-14 25-22 4-8(D) 32-27 1-6?(E) 22-17! 2-7 30-26 5-9 29-25 12-16 24-19 15-24 28-12 11-15 23-19 15-24 27-20 8-11 26-23 11-15 25-22 7-11 31-27 3-7 WW(F)

A - 23-19 draw PP.

 \mathbf{B} – The more popular way.

 \mathbb{C} – 11-16 draw PP. See L. Kondlo – R. Beckwith in round 7.

D – 11-16 draw PP.

E-2-6 30-26 3-7 24-19 should draw, W. R. Barker

- R. D. Yates, 1877 match g.9. The game ended as a fairly long WW, but Kear's Encyclopedia shows it as a draw, ending with the moves shown here.

F – A nice win by Schwartz. The scoresheet says RW.

Joe Schwartz – Sune Thrane, round 5 game 2

A - 1-6 draw PP.

B – E. Bruch played 10-15, in the third round.

 $\mathbf{C} - 24-19$ may be easier.

D – Almost anything else draws, as the pieces on 24 and 27 are safe where they are.

Jack Francis – Michael Holmes, round 5 game 1

A - 6-10 draw PP.

 \mathbf{B} – 6-10 draw in Duffy's Single Corner.

C – 8-12 draw, in Pask's Key Openings.

D – 19-15 should probably draw, J. Francis – M. Holmes, 2005 GAYP Nat.

E - 8-12 or others may draw.

 $\mathbf{F} - 32-27!!$ WW?, as in J. Francis – C. Nash in round 7.

G - 17-22? loses.

 $\mathbf{H} - 22 - 25$ is also strong.

I – 1-6 10-14 19-15 may be easier.

J – 23-18!! 16-23 1-6! 10-14 17-10 7-14 9-5 14-17

A – White Dyke.

 $\mathbf{B} - 25\text{-}22 \text{ draw PP}.$

C - A different move-order from other games in this tournament.

D – As I suggested in the Beckwith – Schwartz game in round 1, 27-23 seems to draw.

E – Other moves: 1-6? draw, R. Beckwith – J.

Schwartz game round 1, or 2-6! RW, L. Kondlo – J. Schwartz in round 6.

F – 2-6 5-1 10-7 RW.

G – A pretty game by Holmes, except for the fumble at the end.

Richard Beckwith - Jack Francis, round 6 game 1

Jan Mortimer – Kim Willis, round 2 game 2

11-15 23-19 7-11(A) 22-17(B) 11-16 24-20?(C) 15-24 20-11 8-15 27-20 15-19 25-22 4-8 29-25?(D) 9-14 22-18(E) 14-23 17-14 10-17 21-14 8-11(F) 31-27 3-7 27-18 19-23 26-19 11-16 20-11 7-23 25-22 6-9 14-10 9-14 18-9 5-14 28-24 12-16 24-19 16-20 19-15 20-24 15-11 24-27 10-7 27-31 7-3 31-26 22-18 1-6?(G) 18-9 6-13 11-8?(H) 2-6?(I) 3-7 13-17 8-3 17-21 3-8 6-9 7-10 26-22 8-11 22-26 11-15 9-13 10-14?(J) 21-25 30-21 23-27 32-23 draw

A = 10-15 23-19 7-10.

 $\mathbf{B} - 22 - 18$ is somewhat more popular.

C – Weak and perhaps never played before. 26-23 draw PP, perhaps to Whilter or Alma.

 \mathbf{D} – May be the loser. 17-13 or others may draw.

 \mathbf{E} – Others may lose.

F – 3-7 31-27 6-10 27-18 10-17 25-21 1-6 RW.

G – 1-5 18-9 5-14 3-7 2-6* 7-2 6-9* 2-6 9-13* 6-9 14-17* 9-14 17-21* 11-7 26-31* 7-2 31-27* 2-6

A – Maid of the Mill. $E - 16-19 \ 23-16 \ 8-12 \ draw.$

B – Or 26-23 draw PP. F – 22-18 WW. C – 10-15 draw PP. G – 11-15 draws.

 $\mathbf{D} - 32-27$ seems to win.

Wilma Wolverton – Kim Willis, round 4 game 1

11-15 23-19 8-11 22-17 4-8(A) 25-22(B) 9-13 27-23 6-9 23-18 9-14 18-9 5-14 24-20?(C) 15-24 28-19 11-15 32-28 15-24 28-19 8-11 26-23 11-15 22-18 15-24 18-9 13-22 30-26 1-6 26-17 6-22 23-18 24-28 21-17 28-32 18-14 2-6 RW

A – Old 14th. C – This loses, 26-23 draw PP.

B – Or 17-13 draw PP.

Kim Willis - Wilma Wolverton, round 4 game 2

A - Cross. match g.30.

 $\mathbf{B} - 23-19 \text{ draw PP.}$ $\mathbf{G} - 1-6 \text{ RW, may be easier.}$

C - 11-16 draw PP. H - 1-6 RW.

D - 32-27 draw PP. I - 13-9! 19-23 9-6! 1-10 24-19 White strong.

E - Or 15-18 draw. J - 19-24 28-19 15-24 RW.

F – 30-26 draw, T. Wiswell – M. Hopper, 1951

Kim Willis – Jan Mortimer, round 5 game 1

A - 17-13 draw PP.

 $\mathbf{B} - 9\text{-}13 \text{ draw PP}$.

C – 17-13 draw PP.

D - 11-16 draw PP.

E – 11-16 should draw, L. Hall – V. Monteiro, 1966 U.S. Nat. from 9-14 22-17 5-9.

F – 23-19 WW?, A. Battersby – H. Freedman, 1898 match g.1 from 9-14 22-17 11-15.

G – 1-5 draw, K. Lovell – W. Edwards, 1993 English Open.

 $\mathbf{H} - 26-23$ seems to be easier.

I - Or 15-18 Red strong.

J – 26-23 draw, H. Henderson – J. Burns, 1905 Scottish Ty. from 11-15 24-20 15-19 and C. Nash – J. Francis, 2005 GAYP Nat. from 11-15 24-20 8-11.

K – A good bluff.

L - 14-23 RW or 15-29 RW.

M - 3-7! saves the piece. A possible continuation: 12-8 7-16 19-12 32-28 draw.

N – The rest of this game is scrambled. White seems to be winning.

Jan Mortimer – Kim Willis, round 5 game 2

11-15 23-19 7-11 21-17 11-16(A) 17-13(B) 16-23 27-11 8-15 22-18 15-22 25-18 4-8 18-15?(C) 10-19 24-15 9-14 32-27 3-7?(D) 29-25?(E) 7-10 25-22(F) RW(G)

A – May be better than 9-13 draw PP. Nemesis' opening book recommends 9-14 draw.

B – As good as 27-23 draw, V. Dowsey – I. Hinson, 1989 I-D.

 \mathbb{C} – 29-25 or others draw.

D - 2-7 RW.

E - 13-9 6-13 15-10 draw?

 $\mathbf{F} - 27-24$ also loses.

G – The rest of this game is scrambled.

Wilma Wolverton – Jan Mortimer, round 6 game 1

11-15 22-17 8-11 17-14(A) 10-17 21-14 9-18 23-14 12-16 25-22 6-9(B) 29-25 9-18 26-23(C) 16-20(D) 23-14 2-6 24-19 15-24 28-19 4-8?(E) 22-18 6-9 25-21 1-6 30-26?(F) 7-10?(G) 14-7 3-10 18-15 11-18 27-24 WW

 \mathbf{A} – White Dyke.

 $\mathbf{B} - 4-8$ draw PP.

C – Maybe better is 24-19, which should draw, A. Bishop – L. Balderson, 1987 GAYP Nat.

D – Or 4-8 23-14 then 1-6 or 8-12 or 16-19 or some combination of these.

E – 6-10 draw, W. Stewart – J. Schwartz, 1984 U.S.

Nat. from 12-16 22-17 16-20.

F - 31-26 WW.

G - 9-13 may draw.

Jan Mortimer – Wilma Wolverton, round 6 game 2

A - 9-14 draw PP.

B - 22-18 draw PP.

C-32-27 draw C.R., E. Lowder – J. Francis, 1996 U.S. Nat. from 9-13 22-18 6-9. J. Childers' annotations to that game imply that White (Red in our game here) is already winning, but I have some doubts about that.

 $\mathbf{D} - 32-27$ seems to draw.

E – The best game of the Women's Tournament.
